Issue/Agenda Recommendation: Request to Terminate Academic Degree Program – Bachelor of Science in Workforce & Program Development

Proposed Action: Approve

Background Information:

The University of West Florida (UWF) proposes to terminate the B.S. in Workforce & Program Development degree program in CIP Code 13.1320, effective fall 2020.

The State University System of Florida Board of Governors (BOG) grants University Boards of Trustees (BOT) the authority to terminate academic programs and offerings at the bachelor's, master's, advanced master's, and specialist levels in order to ensure the efficient use of state resources and maintain the quality and relevancy of academic programs offered by the University of West Florida. Reasons for terminating programs may include but are not limited to:

1. Enrollments are no longer sufficient to justify the cost of instruction, facilities, and equipment.
2. The program duplicates other offerings at the university.
3. The program is no longer aligned with the mission or strategic goals of the university, or is no longer aligned with strategic goals of the Board of Governors.
4. The program no longer meets the needs of the citizens of Florida in providing a viable educational or occupational objective.

The remaining specialization in the degree program was converted to a stand-alone degree program, B.S. in Instructional Design & Technology in CIP Code 13.0501 (STEM – Strategic emphasis), which started in fall 2019.

The decision to terminate this program is consistent with University Policy AC-08.02-04/14 Academic Program Termination and with the Florida Board of Governors Regulation 8.012 Academic program Termination and Temporary Suspension of New Enrollments.

ANTICIPATED PHASE-OUT TERM: Fall 2020

(First term when no student data will be reported for this program)

Please use this form for academic program termination. The form should be approved by the University Board of Trustees (UBOT) prior to submission to the Board of Governors, State University System of Florida for consideration. Please fill out this form completely for each program to be terminated in order for your request to be processed as quickly as possible. Attach additional pages as necessary to provide a complete response. In the case of baccalaureate or master's degree programs, the UBOT may approve termination in accordance with BOG Regulation 8.012, with notification sent to the Board of Governors, Office of Academic and Student Affairs. For doctoral level programs please submit this form with all the appropriate signatures for Board of Governors' consideration. The issues outlined below should be examined by the UBOT when approving program terminations.

1. Provide a narrative rationale for the request to terminate the program.

The specialization in Instructional Design & Technology under CIP code (13.1320) was converted to a stand-alone degree program in Instructional Design & Technology (CIP 13.0501), approved by UWF BOT on March 18, 2019. The new stand-alone degree program started fall 2019. There are no other active specializations under CIP code 13.1320.
2. Indicate on which campus(es) the program is being offered and the extent to which the proposed termination has had or will have an impact on enrollment, enrollment planning, and/or the reallocation of resources.

   This specialization was offered on the Pensacola campus. All resources are being reallocated to the new stand-alone degree program in Instructional Design & Technology in CIP 13.0501, also offered on the Pensacola campus.

3. Explain how the university intends to accommodate any students or faculty who are currently active in the program scheduled to be terminated. State what steps have been taken to inform students and faculty of the intent to terminate the program. Please provide the date when the teach-out plan was submitted to SACSCOC, if applicable.

   A teach-out plan was prepared to accommodate current students in the specialization program which was approved by SACSCOC November 2018. Students were notified of the teach-out plan with instructions on how to contact their advisor and complete their degree program via official mail. All faculty teaching in the specialization have been reassigned to the new degree program in Instructional Design & Technology.

4. Provide data (and cite sources) on the gender and racial distribution of students in and faculty affiliated with the program. For faculty, also list the rank and tenure status of all affected individuals.

5. Identify any potential negative impact of the proposed action on the current representation of females, minorities, faculty, and students in the program.
   As this specialization was converted to a new stand-alone degree program in Instructional Design & Technology, UWF does not anticipate any negative impact to female or minority faculty and students.

6. If this is a baccalaureate program, please explain how and when the Florida College System (FCS) institutions have been notified of its termination so that students can be notified accordingly.
   The Florida College System will be notified via official mail by the Vice Provost.

Issue/Agenda Recommendation: Request to Offer a New Degree Program – Master of Arts in International Affairs

Proposed Action: Approve

Background Information:

The University of West Florida (UWF) proposes to offer the MA in International Affairs degree program in CIP Code 45.0901, a program of strategic emphasis in the category of Economic Development – Global Competitiveness, effective fall 2020.

The MA in International Affairs is a master’s level degree program consisting of 33 semester credit hours beyond a bachelor’s degree. The program is currently being taught as a track within the MA in Political Science. Elevating this specialization to a stand-alone degree program will serve to better identify the program to students and employers. The degree program will be housed in the Reuben O’D. Askew Department of Government within the College of Arts, Social Sciences and Humanities (CASSH). The degree program will be offered using a blend of face-to-face and synchronous online delivery formats.

The MA in International Affairs will emphasize international politics, including relations between countries, trade and diplomatic negotiations, foreign policy, military conflict and engagement, as well as policy guidance and decision-making. An MA in International Affairs is highly sought after by employers including national defense contractors, multi-national corporations, and the military, with all these sectors operating in the Northwest Florida region. This degree program will help students to meet their career goals and enable employers to better identify and recruit our graduates. Graduates of UWF’s MA in International Affairs program will find employment opportunities in jobs with mean annual wages ranging from $72,520 to $112,030. (Source: U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, Occupational Employment Statistics) The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics expects national demand for individuals with advanced education in international affairs to grow between 5-9% through 2026.

Graduates with a master’s degree in international affairs are employed in both the public and private sectors under a variety of titles that include intelligence analyst, policy analyst, political scientist, international relations specialist, and regulatory affairs specialist. Additionally, the Florida Department of Economic Opportunity data estimates growth between 6.2% and 10.1% for graduates with a master’s degree and training in international affairs within the state of Florida through 2026. Northwest Florida has a high concentration of military bases and military employment by private contractors with growth for these occupations between 1.9% and 9.4% through 2026. The MA in International Affairs will also benefit mid-career military members stationed in Northwest Florida who need master’s level credentials to advance in their careers or who are transitioning out of military careers into the civilian sector.

The Reuben O’D. Askew Department of Government has a strong advisory committee that includes the military leadership at Naval Air Station Pensacola, Hurlburt Field, Eglin Air Force Base, and Whiting Field. UWF’s proposed MA in International Affairs will leverage the university’s relationships with local military installation personnel as well as industry along with existing strengths in the department and college.

The addition of the MA in International Affairs degree program at UWF will provide clear benefits to the state, university, and the local community including:

- Increasing the number of degrees awarded in areas of strategic emphasis identified in the current SUS Strategic Plan.
- Providing a degree program at the master’s level that responds to student demand.
- Meeting local, state, and national workforce needs for graduates with advanced education in international affairs and national security.
- Providing interdisciplinary research opportunities for faculty and students, including the UWF Center for Cybersecurity, on topics such as cyberwar threats to governments and national security policy.

Implementation Plan:

- The CAVP approved the MA in International Affairs on February 29, 2019.
- The UWF Faculty Senate approved the curriculum on November 8, 2019.
- The UWF Board of Trustees Academic Affairs Committee considers the Request to Offer a New Degree Program February 13, 2020.
- The UWF Board of Trustees considers the Request to Offer a New Degree Program March 18, 2020.
- The Florida Board of Governors reviews the Request to Offer a New Degree Program March 2020 for inclusion on the approved program inventory for UWF.
- New degree program implemented fall 2020.

Fiscal Implications: Fiscal implications are reflected in the Request to Offer a New Degree Program.

Note: This outline and the questions pertaining to each section must be reproduced within the body of the proposal to ensure that all sections have been satisfactorily addressed. INTRODUCTION

I. Program Description and Relationship to System-Level Goals

A. Briefly describe within a few paragraphs the degree program under consideration, including (a) level; (b) emphases, including majors, concentrations, tracks, or specializations; (c) total number of credit hours; and (d) overall purpose, including examples of employment or education opportunities that may be available to program graduates.

II. Master of Arts

III. International Affairs

IV. 33 Semester Credit Hours

V. The University of West Florida (UWF) seeks to offer a stand-alone Master of Arts in International Affairs degree program, CIP Code 45.0901, beginning fall 2020. The M.A. in International Affairs will be housed in the Department of Government in UWF’s College of Arts, Social Sciences and Humanities. The proposed M.A. in International Affairs program is currently operating as a track in the M.A. in Political Science, CIP Code 45.1001, degree program. The proposed stand-alone M.A. in International Affairs program will be delivered in a blended face-to-face and synchronous online delivery format from the UWF Pensacola Campus.

The curriculum will emphasize international politics, including relations between countries, trade and diplomatic negotiations between countries, foreign policy, and military conflict and engagement. It will also emphasize the policy-making and decision-making process both domestically and internationally. Elevating this specialization to a stand-alone degree program will serve to better identify the program to students and employers by helping students to meet their career goals, and enabling employers to identify and recruit UWF students.

An M.A. in International Affairs is highly sought after by employers such as national defense contractors, international business, and the military (Refer to Section II. A. of this proposal).

B. Please provide the date when the pre-proposal was presented to CAVP (Council of Academic Vice Presidents) Academic Program Coordination review group. Identify any concerns that the CAVP review group raised with the pre-proposed program and provide a brief narrative explaining how each of these concerns has been or is being addressed.

UWF presented the proposed M.A. in International Affairs degree program proposal to the CAVP on February 22, 2019. Two areas of concern were expressed by some members of the review group. The first concern addressed whether there is enough demand, especially in North Florida, for this type of degree program. The second concern expressed was in relation to the selected program CIP Code. This concern was prompted by some of the pre-proposal language regarding cybersecurity. UWF has addressed the first and second concerns by the CAVP by pointing out the uniqueness of the proposed curriculum for the M.A. in International Affairs.
Sections II.A. and II.B of this proposal demonstrate the demand for the program in North Florida and specifically in the region which UWF serves.

In response to the CAVP concern related to demand, UWF’s proposed M.A. program has been offered by the Reubin O’D. Askew Department of Government as a specialization in Security and Diplomacy of the existing M.A. in Political Science. The department wishes to convert this specialization into a stand-alone degree program. Based on historical data from the specialization, the primary target for the stand-alone degree program’s enrollment is students who currently reside in Northwest Florida. The program specialization students are currently employed in civil service or military service sectors or are current UWF undergraduates who do not want to leave the local area but need graduate work to enhance their prospects of working in their field locally. Elevating this specialization to a stand-alone degree program in International Affairs will allow graduates to more quickly convey the nature of their master's level education to potential employers in the government and military sectors to include private contractors of the many military installations in the UWF service area.

UWF has addressed the second concern of the CAVP regarding the appropriateness of the CIP code of 45.0901 for the proposed degree program given references to cybersecurity while the curriculum and courses are all from the Political Science discipline. The proposed degree program would not involve the technical aspects of a field such as computer networking security, as are the focus of UWF’s existing programs in cybersecurity. The department sees opportunity for interdisciplinary collaboration with other academic departments, however, the focus of UWF’s stand-alone degree program in International Affairs is to offer national security policy courses, which address cybersecurity threats (among other threats such as missile threats, chemical weapon threats, etc.) from a policy perspective rather than from a technical perspective.

C. If this is a doctoral level program please include the external consultant’s report at the end of the proposal as Appendix D. Please provide a few highlights from the report and describe ways in which the report affected the approval process at the university.

Not applicable; this is not a doctoral degree program.

D. Describe how the proposed program is consistent with the current State University System (SUS) Strategic Planning Goals. Identify which specific goals the program will directly support and which goals the program will indirectly support (see link to the SUS Strategic Plan on the resource page for new program proposal).

Increase the Number of Degrees Awarded in STEM and Other Areas of Strategic Emphasis

This program supports the SUS Strategic Planning Goal of Economic Development - Global Competitiveness. With emphasis in national security and diplomacy UWF’s proposed M.A. in International Affairs will train students to work in the government sector through military or civilian service. The stand-alone degree program will offer a globally-focused curriculum, which will make an economic impact in the state and particularly in the region with its numerous military facilities and associated civilian contractors. The department asserts that creating this stand-alone degree program will serve to better identify the program, help students to better meet their career goals, and enable employers to better identify and recruit our students.

Increase Collaboration and External Support for Research Activity

In terms of research funding, converting the specialization into a stand-alone M.A. in International Affairs degree program will enhance the program’s visibility. In terms of competitive standing, the stand-alone degree program will be better placed for applying for grants through sources such as Homeland Security, National Security Agency, and Department of Defense. In campus brainstorming meetings, faculty members have identified potential grant money and funding that can be tied to cybersecurity policy decision-making or intelligence and security analysis, specific learning outcomes of the stand-alone degree program.

E. If the program is to be included in a category within the Programs of Strategic Emphasis as described in the SUS Strategic Plan, please indicate the category and the justification for inclusion.

The Programs of Strategic Emphasis Categories:
1. Critical Workforce:
   - Education
   - Health
   - Gap Analysis
2. Economic Development:
   - Global Competitiveness
3. Science, Technology, Engineering, and Math (STEM)

Please see the Programs of Strategic Emphasis (PSE) methodology for additional explanations on program inclusion criteria at the resource page for new program proposal.

Program of Strategic Emphasis Category: Economic Development- Global Competitiveness.

The proposed program, M.A. in International Affairs, which falls under CIP Code 45.0901 (International Relations and Affairs), is identified in the State University System Strategic Plan as a Program of Strategic Emphasis in Global Competitiveness.

F. Identify any established or planned educational sites at which the program is expected to be offered and indicate whether it will be offered only at sites other than the main campus.

The program will be offered in a face-to-face format at the UWF Pensacola campus as well as through synchronous online delivery with a maximum of the program offered through synchronous online delivery at approximately 50%.
INSTITUTIONAL AND STATE LEVEL ACCOUNTABILITY

II. Need and Demand

A. Need: Describe national, state, and/or local data that support the need for more people to be prepared in this program at this level. Reference national, state, and/or local plans or reports that support the need for this program and requests for the proposed program which have emanated from a perceived need by agencies or industries in your service area. Cite any specific need for research and service that the program would fulfill.

Individuals who graduate from UWF’s M.A. in International Affairs degree program will find employment in the public and private sector. The Bureau of Labor Statistics broadly defines the career options as Political Science (SOC-Code 19-3094), however it is important to examine the data more broadly as ‘Political Scientist’ does not adequately capture the broad range of career paths these graduates will be prepared to pursue. Additionally, the Reubin O’D. Askew Department of Government Chair has indicated that this degree program is geared to educate graduates toward the following areas:

- Security and diplomacy
- Military and civilian contractor
- Governmental service
- Diplomatic careers
- Intelligence
- Homeland security
- International affairs.
- National Security Agency (NSA)

In addition to the most identifiable job category of Political Scientist, there are additional job categories that can be used to support employment options for the M.A. in International Affairs. The following jobs descriptions and category data are provided by U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) and O-Net, which are sponsored by the U.S. Department of Labor.

Political Scientists – Study the origin, development, and operation of political systems. They research political ideas and analyze governments, policies, political trends, and related issues. Political scientists also work as policy analysts for organizations that have a stake in policy, such as government, labor unions, and political groups. They evaluate current policies and events using public opinion surveys, economic data, and election results. From these sources, they try to anticipate the effects of new policies.

Political scientists often research the effects of government policies on a particular region or population, both domestically and internationally. As a result, they provide information and analysis that help in planning, developing, or carrying out policies.

Intelligence Analysts - Gather, analyze, or evaluate information from a variety of sources, such as law enforcement databases, surveillance, intelligence networks or geographic information systems. Use intelligence data to anticipate and prevent organized crime activities, such as terrorism.
Business Intelligence Analysts - Produce financial and market intelligence by querying data repositories and generating periodic reports. Devise methods for identifying data patterns and trends in available information sources.

Regulatory Affairs Specialists - Coordinate and document internal regulatory processes, such as internal audits, inspections, license renewals, or registrations. May compile and prepare materials for submission to regulatory agencies. Coordinate, prepare, or review regulatory submissions for domestic or international projects. Identify relevant guidance documents, international standards, or consensus standards and provide interpretive assistance. Obtain and distribute updated information regarding domestic or international laws, guidelines, or standards.

UWF and the Reubin O’D. Askew Department of Government serve a large population of active duty and military veterans. Many of the students who are anticipated to pursue the M.A. in International Affairs are current and former military. A search performed October 29, 2019 on USAJOBS the Federal Government’s official employment site yielded 7,686 openings for M.A. in International Affairs graduates. Table 3 below details the results of the job search. Appendix G contains examples of current job postings found on USAJOBS.gov from the categories shown in Table 3.

FLORIDA

Florida’s overall Federal government employment is projected to decline over the next eight years, however job growth for independent contractors who work for the military is expected to increase. Table 4 shows that the job categories associated with the M.A. in International Affairs are associated with positive growth and high-wages in Florida.

A job search was conducted on the job site Indeed.com on October 29, 2019. The search parameters were “International Affairs” for the job title/keyword, and the location was Florida. This search yielded 11 active job postings that require a master’s degree or higher in the field of International Relations. NORTHWEST FLORIDA

This program will benefit mid-career military members stationed in Northwest Florida who need master’s level credentials to advance in their careers or who are transitioning out of military careers into the civilian sector.

Northwest Florida has a very high concentration of military bases and military employment by independent contractors. While Federal government jobs comprise 1.5% of all jobs statewide, the number is more than double that in Northwest Florida at 3.4%. Independent contractor jobs appear under their SOC Code categories and can be tracked for state and local employment data. Based on the current student population of the Security and Diplomacy Track in UWF’s Department of Government graduate program, students who graduate from the M.A. in International Affairs will seek employment or elevate their employment status with the U.S. military. Table 5, below, shows Escambia and Santa Rosa County job information for graduates of UWF’s M.A. in International Affairs degree program.

B. Demand: Describe data that support the assumption that students will enroll in the proposed program. Include descriptions of surveys or other communications with prospective students.

The UWF Department of Government currently offers an M.A. in Political Science degree program with a specialization in Security and Diplomacy. Student interest in the proposed M.A. in International Affairs will be driven by students’ desire to work in the global public, business, or intelligence sectors of the national defense, homeland security, or civilian contracting areas.

The departmental academic advisor has reported to the department chair that students consistently ask for an M.A. program in International Affairs. Students have conveyed to the academic advisor that they would like to continue their education at UWF, but because the university lacks an M.A. in International Affairs and they wish to remain in the local area to pursue careers, they often end up working outside of their desired career field or miss out on opportunities for higher compensation and additional responsibilities. Elevating this specialization to a stand-alone degree program will make the degree program more visible to students and resonate better with potential employers.

Furthermore, both students and local community and military officials have indicated that such a degree would make our students more marketable, particularly in the local military-dominant job market (see community letters of support in Appendix F). In order to better capture student demand, the department surveyed all undergraduate and graduate students at the start of fall semester 2019. Of the 232 respondents, 197 students or 84.9% responded that they would be interested in a Master of Arts in International Affairs. These results indicate strong student demand for this program among existing students.

C. If substantially similar programs (generally at the four-digit CIP Code or 60 percent similar in core courses), either private or public exist in the state, identify the institution(s) and geographic location(s). Summarize the outcome(s) of communication with such programs with regard to the potential impact on their enrollment and opportunities for possible collaboration (instruction and research). In Appendix C, provide data that support the need for an additional program.

The State University System of Florida currently offers four other master’s degree programs in CIP Code 45.0901. Table 6 outlines these similar degree programs. The program at UF is the most similar to the proposed program at UWF, as its curriculum also utilizes political science courses exclusively. The UF program has two research methods courses and then an emphasis on security studies and courses in the International Relations subfield. The main distinction of UWF’s proposed program is that it also includes courses from the political science subfield of Comparative Politics. This subfield compares political institutions across countries and regions to profile and compare differing political cultures. The programs at UNF and FSU have a strong interdisciplinary emphasis. Both the FSU and UNF programs include courses from Political Science but also Anthropology, Economics, Geography, History, Philosophy, Religion, and Sociology. FSU’s program also includes courses in Urban and Regional Planning.

The UWF department chair contacted chairs and program directors of each of the four departments offering an M.A. degree program in International Affairs. Conversations included discussion of enrollment impacts. All four expressed strong support for UWF’s proposed M.A. in International Affairs both verbally and in writing. Comments consistently focused on the uniqueness of UWF’s single-disciplinary program across the SUS and on the natural fit for such a program in the local, military-dominant economy. Regarding program uniqueness, one summarized saying, “Given that your program will not be an interdisciplinary program in the same sense as ours, it seems that there will be little overlap in the content between the two.” An exemplary comment on local economic impact stated, “I believe UWF is ideally situated for a partnership with the military installations in its vicinity, which would provide access to practitioners to enhance the applied aspect of the program.” Additionally, UWF received a letter of support from USF’s School of Interdisciplinary Global Studies. SUS letters of support are found in Appendix E.

D. Use Table 1 in Appendix A (1-A for undergraduate and 1-B for graduate) to categorize projected student headcount (HC) and Full Time Equivalents (FTE) according to primary sources. Generally undergraduate FTE will be calculated as 30 credit hours per year and graduate FTE will be calculated as 24 credit hours per year. Describe the rationale underlying enrollment projections. If students within the institution are expected to change majors to enroll in the proposed program at its inception, describe the shifts from disciplines that will likely occur.

Students for the proposed degree program will come from the current audience of candidates who apply to the M.A. in Political Science Security and Diplomacy Track that this program will replace. Additionally, the synchronous online degree program will attract students from outside of the region and state and allow the department to support active duty military students on deployment who wish to continue their education without interruption.

As is shown in Appendix A Table 1, the Department Chair expects the new stand-alone degree program to begin with 10 students (5.5 FTE) in fall 2020. Student headcount for Year 5 is anticipated to reach 20 (11 FTE) and remain consistent at that number. E&G cost per FTE for Year 1 is $21,562, all reallocated funds. The E&G cost per FTE for Year 5 will decrease to $16,394. The SUS average for CIP Code 45 is $17,642. (2017-2018 data)

E. Indicate what steps will be taken to achieve a diverse student body in this program. If the proposed program substantially duplicates a program at FAMU or FIU, provide, (in consultation with the affected university), an analysis of how the program might have an impact upon that university’s ability to attract students of races different from that which is predominant on their campus in the subject program. The university’s Equal Opportunity Officer shall review this section of the proposal and then sign and date Appendix B to indicate that the analysis required by this subsection has been completed.

Regarding UWF's proposed M.A. in Political Science degree program, no comments were expressed concerning impact on programs at FAMU or FIU during the February 22, 2019, CAVP Program Coordination Work Group conference call.

Consistent with its mission, UWF has admissions policies that balance attention to access, inclusiveness, and quality. In addition, UWF encourages applications from qualified persons and does not discriminate on the basis of age, color, disability, gender (including gender identity and sex), marital status, national origin, race, religion, sexual orientation, or veteran status. Also, UWF's New Academic Program Approval Policy requires that programs appropriately address diversity. Therefore, the university and its degree programs take proactive measures to achieve a diverse student body. Based on the enrollment in UWF’s M.A. in Political Science Security and Diplomacy Track, the proposed M.A. in International Affairs degree program will attract active duty military and veterans.

To ensure the desired outcome for student diversity, recruiting efforts initially focus on the university's eight-county service area: Escambia, Santa Rosa, Okaloosa, Walton, Holmes, Washington, Bay, and Gulf. Recruitment efforts also extend to other geographic regions having larger underrepresented populations of prospective students.
Program faculty and staff will use multiple outreach methods to ensure diversity in the program. The College of Arts, Social Sciences, and Humanities will promote the proposed M.A. in International Affairs degree to the aforementioned student segments.

III. Budget

A. Use Table 2 in Appendix A to display projected costs and associated funding sources for Year 1 and Year 5 of program operation. Use Table 3 in Appendix A to show how existing Education & General funds will be shifted to support the new program in Year 1. In narrative form, summarize the contents of both tables, identifying the source of both current and new resources to be devoted to the proposed program. (Data for Year 1 and Year 5 reflect snapshots in time rather than cumulative costs.)

Total Year 1 costs equal $118,593, all funds to be reallocated from the existing Security and Diplomacy Track of the M.A. in Political Science. The following is a breakdown of the projected Year 1 costs as shown in Appendix A Table 2, all from E&G funds:

- Current full-time faculty salaries and fringe apportioned to the stand-alone degree program at $91,223 (reallocated).
- One fifth of the Department Administrator salary and fringe at $8,820 (reallocated).
- Adjunct expense of $2,750 (reallocated).
- Assistantships at $12,800 (reallocated).
- There will be no additional library expenses for the program as the department will use the materials already in place for the graduate level M.A. in Political Science degree program with its existing security and diplomacy concentration track. (See Section X.B.)
- One fifth of the department office supply and sundry expenses at $3,000 (reallocated).

Total Year 5 costs equal $180,332. The following is a breakdown of the projected Year 5 costs as shown in Appendix A Table 2, all continuing base E&G funds:

- Year 1 full-time faculty salaries and fringe (adding one existing full-time faculty in Year 2) at .15 all figures increased at five per cent per annum at a total of $151,061.
- One fifth of the Department Administrator salary and fringe increased at five percent per annum at $10,721.
- Adjunct expense consistent at $2,750 for teaching one course during the summer semester.
- Assistantships at $12,800.
- One fifth of the department office supply and sundry expenses at $3,000.

The E&G cost per FTE for the program is $21,562 for Year 1 and $16,394 for Year 5. These figures are in line with the State University System average E&G cost per FTE for CIP Code 45 of $17,641.60 (2017-2018 data).

B. Please explain whether the university intends to operate the program through continuing education, seek approval for market tuition rate, or establish a differentiated graduate-level tuition. Provide a rationale for doing so and a timeline for seeking Board of Governors’ approval, if appropriate. Please include the expected rate of tuition that the university plans to charge for this program and use this amount when calculating cost entries in Table 2.

UWF does not intend to operate the program through continuing education on a cost-recovery basis, seek approval for market tuition rate, or establish differentiated graduate-level tuition. The
M.A. in International Affairs program will be offered as a regular online degree program through UWF’s Department of Government. The university charges a $15.00 per credit hour fee for online courses. That fee is included in the tuition for the M.A. in International Affairs degree program in Table 7 below.

C. If other programs will be impacted by a reallocation of resources for the proposed program, identify the impacted programs and provide a justification for reallocating resources. Specifically address the potential negative impacts that implementation of the proposed program will have on related undergraduate programs (i.e., shift in faculty effort, reallocation of instructional resources, reduced enrollment rates, greater use of adjunct faculty and teaching assistants). Explain what steps will be taken to mitigate any such impacts. Also, discuss the potential positive impacts that the proposed program might have on related undergraduate programs (i.e., increased undergraduate research opportunities, improved quality of instruction associated with cutting-edge research, improved labs and library resources).

As a graduate level program, implementation of the M.A. in International Affairs degree program will have no impacts on general education or common prerequisite courses. It will have no impacts on departments outside Political Science with the exception of the shift of M.A. in Political Science Security and Diplomacy Track program students to the new stand-alone degree program. The department expects the number of students who may shift from the current Security and Diplomacy track to the new degree program will be about half of the current program population.

D. Describe other potential impacts on related programs or departments (e.g., increased need for general education or common prerequisite courses, or increased need for required or elective courses outside of the proposed major).

As a graduate level program, implementation of the M.A. in International Affairs degree program will have no impacts on general education or common prerequisite courses. It will have no impacts on departments outside Political Science with the exception of the shift of M.A. in Political Science Security and Diplomacy Track program students to the new stand-alone degree program.

E. Describe what steps have been taken to obtain information regarding resources (financial and in-kind) available outside the institution (businesses, industrial organizations, governmental entities, etc.). Describe the external resources that appear to be available to support the proposed program.

The department has worked with UWF’s Office of Economic Development and Engagement to develop strategies for potential funding and grant opportunities. Future opportunities for funding could come through grant programs such as becoming an Intelligence Community Center for Academic Excellence (ICCAE). The department also examined the DOD Minerva grant program. Local grants and money may be possible by building on groundwork that the department has worked to establish through faculty community outreach, public speaker exchanges, and research collaboration with local municipal and military organizations as shown in Table 8.

IV. Projected Benefit of the Program to the University, Local Community, and State

Use information from Tables 1 and 2 in Appendix A, and the supporting narrative for “Need and Demand” to prepare a concise statement that describes the projected benefit to the university, local community, and the state if the program is implemented. The projected benefits can be both quantitative and qualitative in nature, but there needs to be a clear distinction made between the two in the narrative.

The local community, particularly military bases and their partner civilian contractors, have expressed the need for post-baccalaureate graduates with emphasis on international policy issues and national security studies in both their military and civilian workforce. Establishing an M.A. program in International Affairs will benefit our students who seek local or regional employment or employment with the military.

University Benefits
The creation of the M.A. in International Affairs will benefit the university in several ways. Specifically, it will achieve the following:

1. Provide a degree program at the M.A. level consistent with student demand for specialization in the security and international relations areas of study.
2. Make the university more responsive to local / regional workforce opportunities.
3. Provide more research and collaboration opportunities within the university, such as with the UWF Center for Cybersecurity through our courses on national security policy and cyberwar threats to governments.
Local Community Benefits
The creation of the M.A. in International Affairs will benefit the local community in several ways. Specifically, it will achieve the following:

1. Continue to foster partnerships with local military bases for exchanges of knowledge and subject area expertise.
2. Provide students trained specifically in national security to meet those local workforce and military needs.
3. Allow for further development of our relationship with CivicCon locally, the organization committed to expanding citizen knowledge of policy issues, through fostering student focus in international and global security issues.

State of Florida Benefits
The creation of the M.A. in International Affairs will benefit the state in several ways. Specifically, it will achieve the following:

1. Provide a second M.A. program option focused in national security studies within the SUS system.
2. Provide an M.A. program focused in national security studies within the SUS at a terminal master’s degree-granting institution where preparing M.A. students for the workforce rather than for Ph.D. programs is a key priority.

V. Access and Articulation – Bachelor’s Degrees Only

A. If the total number of credit hours to earn a degree exceeds 120, provide a justification for an exception to the policy of a 120 maximum and submit a separate request to the Board of Governors for an exception along with notification of the program’s approval. (See criteria in Board of Governors Regulation 6C-8.014)

Not applicable; this is a graduate degree program.

B. List program prerequisites and provide assurance that they are the same as the approved common prerequisites for other such degree programs within the SUS (see link to the Common Prerequisite Manual on the resource page for new program proposal). The courses in the Common Prerequisite Counseling Manual are intended to be those that are required of both native and transfer students prior to entrance to the major program, not simply lower-level courses that are required prior to graduation. The common prerequisites and substitute courses are mandatory for all institution programs listed, and must be approved by the Articulation Coordinating Committee (ACC). This requirement includes those programs designated as “limited access.”

If the proposed prerequisites are not listed in the Manual, provide a rationale for a request for exception to the policy of common prerequisites. NOTE: Typically, all lower-division courses required for admission into the major will be considered prerequisites. The curriculum can require lower-division courses that are not prerequisites for admission into the major, as long as those courses are built into the curriculum for the upper-level 60 credit hours. If there are already common prerequisites for other degree programs with the same proposed CIP, every effort must be made to utilize the previously approved prerequisites instead of recommending an additional “track” of prerequisites for that CIP. Additional tracks may not be approved by the ACC, thereby holding up the full approval of the degree program. Programs will not be entered into the State University System Inventory until any exceptions to the approved common prerequisites are approved by the ACC.

Not applicable; this is a graduate degree program.

C. If the university intends to seek formal Limited Access status for the proposed program, provide a rationale that includes an analysis of diversity issues with respect to such a designation. Explain how the university will ensure that Florida College System transfer students are not disadvantaged by the Limited Access status. NOTE: The policy and criteria for Limited Access are identified in Board of Governors Regulation 6C-8.013. Submit the Limited Access Program Request form along with this document.

Not applicable; this is a graduate degree program.

D. If the proposed program is an AS-to-BS capstone, ensure that it adheres to the guidelines approved by the Articulation Coordinating Committee for such programs, as set forth in Rule 6A-10.024 (see link to the Statewide Articulation Manual on the resource page for new program proposal). List the prerequisites, if any, including the specific AS degrees which may transfer into the program.

The proposed degree program is not an AS-to-BS capstone.

INSTITUTIONAL READINESS

VI. Related Institutional Mission and Strength

A. Describe how the goals of the proposed program relate to the institutional mission statement as contained in the SUS Strategic Plan and the University Strategic Plan (see link to the SUS Strategic Plan on the resource page for new program proposal).

Our mission at UWF is to:

- Provide high-quality undergraduate and graduate education,
- Conduct teaching and research that services the body of knowledge, and
- Contribute to the needs of professions and society

The proposed M.A. program in International Affairs supports UWF’s mission to provide high-quality graduate education. As a Master’s degree program, the focus will be on training master’s students who will then transition to the professions and to society. The degree program will emphasize research, analysis, critical-thinking and communication skills that set these students apart, above the level of our undergraduate students, so that they have refined skills appropriate to workforce needs. In particular, students will develop a level of expertise in security studies and international relations making them more attractive to employers in the military, civilian, intelligence, and security sectors.

B. Describe how the proposed program specifically relates to existing institutional strengths, such as programs of emphasis, other academic programs, and/or institutes and centers.

UWF currently ranks in the Top Ten in the nation as a Military Friendly School according to Victory Media’s annual ranking (https://www.militaryfriendly.com/schools/). Active duty military, veterans, and their families comprise a significant proportion of the student population given the setting in the region surrounded by military bases. The population that served is a strength of UWF and the Reubin O’D. Askew Department of Government is home to a significant number of these individuals in these degree programs. The department anticipates that the proposed M.A. degree program in International Affairs will align with the career and professional interests of many of military service members, veterans, civilian contractors, and dependents.

Additionally, the second largest major within the College of Arts, Social Sciences and Humanities is the undergraduate major in International Studies, a program of strategic emphasis, within the Reubin O’D. Askew Department of Government. The largest of three concentration tracks within the International Studies major is Security and Diplomacy. The proposed M.A. in International Affairs will be housed within the same department providing a steady stream for students in the undergraduate concentration track of Security and Diplomacy to continue into graduate level studies.

Finally, UWF’s President has made cybersecurity a top priority area for distinction. UWF’s Center for Cybersecurity is the NSA/DHS National Center of Academic Excellence Regional Resource Center for the Southeast. The president has emphasized multidisciplinary partnerships with the Center for Cybersecurity to be a hallmark of UWF’s institutional focus. As a result of this institutional focus, the UWF Center for Cybersecurity is a natural partner for the College of Arts, Social Sciences and Humanities Reubin O’D. Askew Department of Government and the proposed M.A. in International Affairs degree program as an educational and programming partner as pertains to security policy and governmental decision-making applications of cybersecurity.

C. Provide a narrative of the planning process leading up to submission of this proposal. Include a chronology in table format of the activities, listing both university personnel directly involved and external individuals who participated in planning. Provide a timetable of events necessary for the implementation of the proposed program.

VII. Program Quality Indicators - Reviews and Accreditation

Identify program reviews, accreditation visits, or internal reviews for any university degree programs related to the proposed program, especially any within the same academic unit. List all recommendations and summarize the institution’s progress in implementing the recommendations.

Pursuant to BOG Regulation 8.015, all academic departments at UWF conduct program reviews every seven years. The Reubin O’D. Askew Department of Government conducted a program review in 2013.

Among the findings were: “7. The International Affairs specialization should be marketed to the NW Florida community especially for military members and their families. One area that most military training lacks is a cultural and political awareness of many of the countries in which the US military serves.” The proposed M.A. program addresses this suggestion directly, as this is a key focus driving the proposal.

Overall, the findings of the 2013 program review focused on enrollment growth strategies, assessment strategies, and miscellaneous items such as adding a departmental advisor to the staff, data analysis course incorporation, and emphasis on student research. The department has addressed these findings and has implemented a curriculum and assessment subcommittee as well as a recruitment and retention subcommittee to develop strategies for enrollment growth. Curricula have been reviewed and revised among existing departmental programs over a period of several years. Student learning outcomes have also been streamlined and assessment practices revised. A professional advisor has been added and all majors are required to take a data analysis course with emphasis on skill-building for career application.

VIII. Curriculum

A. Describe the specific expected student learning outcomes associated with the proposed program. If a bachelor’s degree program, include a web link to the Academic Learning Compact or include the document itself as an appendix.

The Academic Learning Plan and Curriculum Map are provided in Appendix C. Below is a description of the Student Learning Outcomes for the proposed M.A. in International Affairs degree program.

Student Learning Outcomes:

UWF Master of Arts in International Affairs graduates should be able to do the following:

Content:

• Compare the organization and exercise of political power both between and within different regimes and political cultures.

Critical Thinking:

• Identify relevant theories from the scholarly literature that are helpful for understanding the selected question, problem, or puzzle.

Communication:

• Write coherent, intelligible, systematic, and potentially persuasive papers.
• Accurately present and defend findings orally with appropriate visual tools.

Integrity/Values:

• Use legitimate scholarship and appropriate citation in keeping with the standards of academic integrity.

B. Describe the admission standards and graduation requirements for the program.

In addition to the university graduate admission requirements described above, the department bases decisions for regular admission on a holistic review of credentials in which the following criteria are used to assess the potential success of each applicant:
• Graduate Record Examination (GRE) verbal and quantitative score or Miller Analogies Test (MAT) with a minimum score in each that ranks in the 50th percentile or better*
• Undergraduate cumulative GPA of 3.0 or above
• Submission of a sample research paper

*The graduate admission test requirement may be waived for applicants with a 3.25 GPA or higher in one of the following undergraduate majors: Political Science, Political Science-Pre Law, or International Studies/Affairs major.

C. Describe the curricular framework for the proposed program, including number of credit hours and composition of required core courses, restricted electives, unrestricted electives, thesis requirements, and dissertation requirements. Identify the total numbers of semester credit hours for the degree.

The M.A. in International Affairs degree program requires the completion of 33 graduate semester credit hours (SCH) as described below in Table 11. All students will take a common core of 18 SCH in which they develop skills in research methods and build foundational knowledge in each of the main subfields of political science that is necessary for a focus in policy-making and security analysis both domestic and international. Thesis students will finish the program by taking 9 SCH of program courses focused in national security, regional area studies, and contemporary global issues and 6 SCH of thesis. Non-thesis students will take 15 SCH of courses focused in national security, regional area studies, and contemporary global issues and a comprehensive examination at the end of the degree program.

E. Provide a one- or two-sentence description of each required or elective course.

Required Core Courses (18 SCH)

CPO 6006 Seminar in Comparative Politics 3 SCH
Comparison and analysis of political systems, theoretical and empirical.

INR 6007 Seminar in International Relations 3 SCH
International Relations as a field of study; theory, empirical data, historical development of the field.

POS 6006 The Study of Politics 3 SCH
Introduces the graduate study of political science. It concerns “scope” more than “method,” and the range is broad, focusing on what political scientists do—teach, research, advise, and serve. Concerns embrace every conceivable level- local, regional, national, cultural, global, planetary.

POS 6045 Seminar in American Politics 3 SCH
Course content includes an overview of the institutions and processes of the American political system, the trend and tendencies of political behavior, and the diverse theoretical understandings of American government in the world of political science. Focus is on understanding and critically evaluating interpretations of the structure and function of our governmental system, including: the three branches of government, elections, political socialization and civic engagement, representation, political parties, and interest mobilization.

POS 6704 Political Science Research Methods 3 SCH
Methods and logic of research in political science. POS 6704, Political Science Research Methods provides students with the knowledge and skills required to analyze and critique, as well as design, applied research in public policy and public affairs. The course introduces the student to the enterprise of academic research in these areas, provides the student with knowledge and understanding of the various philosophical and methodological approaches to applied research and allows the student to develop and hone analytical skills. Accepted social science research designs will be introduced and an analysis of threats to the validity and reliability of these different designs will be considered. Sampling theory and statistical analysis will be introduced.

POT 5016 Seminar in Political Theory 3 SCH
A survey of several of the seminal works by political theorists of the ancient and medieval period, including Plato, Aristophanes, Xenophon, Aristotle, Cicero, and St. Augustine. Readings will introduce such themes as the classification of regimes, the debate between the poets and the philosophers, the role of the virtues in perpetuation of civic order, the problem of the many and the one, the tension between the philosopher and the city, the problems of justice, the ideas of Nature and human nature, and the status of the gods and/or religion in political life.

Required Course - Thesis option only

POS 6971 Thesis 6 SCH
Graded on satisfactory / unsatisfactory basis only. Permission is required.
Restricted electives (Total of 15 SCH)

CPO 5315  Democracies  3 SCH
This course examines what it means to be a 21st century democracy. It explores institutional variants of democracy, including different structures of government and electoral systems. It considers the promise and the problems that democracy holds. In the course we will explore democratic variants examining factors such as accountability, competitiveness, transparency, representation. We will examine democratization and how to build and sustain democracy. We will consider preconditions for democracy and discuss the complex relationship between democracy and economics.

CPO 5779  Radicalism and Extremism  3 SCH
Political radicals and political extremists reside outside of the boundaries of mainstream politics because they diverge sharply in their ideological orientation strategy and tactics relative to the parties of the political center. This course focuses on the ideology, discourse, goals and actions of certain parties and groups on the fringe of politics. Emphasis is placed on conceptualizing the terms “radical” and “extremist” to develop an understanding of how these groups stand apart from the mainstream. Comparative cases will be examined ranging from consideration of a wide variety of American radicals on both the political right and political left, European radical right political parties, religious radicals and fundamentalism, and Middle Eastern radical Islam. We will characterize various extremist groups, discuss strategies and tactics, explore factors that catalyze such groups, and consider their impact and significance on policy but also on governance and society.

CPO 5XXX  African Politics  3 SCH
Africa is a diverse and expansive continent. Its politics are no different. This course examines African politics with significant appreciation for and attention to the historical and geographical factors that shaped and continue to shape them. A key phenomenon in African politics is the lack of security, or insecurity. This, too, will be examined and discussed in detail. Furthermore, the role of technology on African politics will be studied. Africa will be examined as a continent as well as in its constituent parts, including sub-regions and individual nation-states. And the role of both state and non-state actors will be considered throughout. The course does not assume specific knowledge or understanding of Africa or its politics; but it does assume general knowledge and understanding of international and comparative politics.

CPO 5XXX  Political Economy  3 SCH
This course has two objectives in mind. One is to inquire into methods of analysis that borrow certain ideas from economics, such as self-interest and incentives, to the study of politics. One might call this the methodological objective. The other objective is to examine the reciprocal relations between government and the domestic economy. Specifically, it surveys what political scientists and public intellectuals have said about the effect of economic conditions on regime survival and elections, on the one hand, and on the other the impact of regime type and public policy on various measures of the general welfare as economic growth, human development, and income or wealth inequality. We shall begin with excerpts from ancient and modern thinkers, then proceed to analyze scholarship by contemporary political scientists and political economists.
INR 5088  International Conflict  3 SCH
This course examines some of the primary theories of the origins and termination of interstate war. The course begins with a discussion of the logic and empirical support for a number of popular hypotheses and questions on war. Do leaders start war to divert attention from domestic problems? Does trade promote peace? Do alliances deter or entrap? Do arms races promote peace? Does a balance of power promote peace? The discussion of these questions and hypotheses leaves us with a new one. Given that war is costly, why are the contending sides unable to reach a settlement short of the major use of armed force? The course concludes with a discussion of the termination of war.

INR 5105  American Foreign Policy  3 SCH
Americans seek to change the world and remain distinct from it. They energetically export their religious views, yet they officially support secularism. Americans denounce imperialism and coercion, yet they are accused of building a global empire and wielding astounding military power. And above all these tensions, Americans exert unparalleled influence and power in a globalized, increasingly democratic world that they helped create, yet they fret about relative decline and entertain plans for retrenchment and isolation. This course, therefore, seeks to analyze how Americans view and pursue their relationship with the world as well as the foundations and conduct of their foreign policy. It considers the institutions and offices, interests and political culture, and international challenges (including security, economic and humanitarian issues) that shape American foreign policy outcomes. To understand these influences, our readings, lecture and discussion will combine scholarly theories and policy perspectives. We will especially focus on debates regarding America's role as a global leader.

INR 5129  Statecraft  3 SCH
This course introduces students to fundamental questions, theoretical arguments and concepts in the area of foreign policy analysis and decision making, otherwise known as Statecraft. The course examines core topics in statecraft such as deterrence (conventional and nuclear), coercive diplomacy, tools of coercion, and the ethics of using force. Throughout the course, students will also study several prominent cases.

INR 5316  Grand Strategy in International Relations  3 SCH
This course evaluates the historical, philosophical and scientific dimensions of grand strategy. As a topic, grand strategy refers to the link between a state's goals and capabilities. It is how states understand and pursue their perceived interests and roles in the world. Understanding grand strategies offers an essential tool to evaluate states' foreign policies as well as the international system in which they operate. The course works through several historical and contemporary case studies of great and mid-level powers, such as Russia, China and the United States. It considers grand strategy's institutional, cultural and external sources, and it apprises the normative or ethical goals of grand strategy. Throughout these case studies, students will also engage major theories, and they will interrogate key issues such as economic integration, nonproliferation, diplomatic agendas, conflict and cybersecurity.

INR 5330  National Security Policy, Technology, and Cyber  3 SCH
Technological innovation drives history. It creates new threats, opens opportunities, changes lives, and allows new types of interaction. For political leaders, it also creates ongoing pressure to innovate and adapt national security policy. This course presents several different approaches to the analysis of technology and national security. It starts with world historical analyses before turning to more recent theories of politics and innovation. Students will also read and assess policy documents. Throughout, the course focuses on cybersecurity as an evolving policy challenge, and it concludes with a concentrated set of readings on the topic.

INR 5547 War and Peace in East Asia 3 SCH
This course uses East Asian international history since the late 19th Century to explore some of the most enduring questions about international politics. What are the causes of war? How, once begun, do wars end? Why do some wars end in negotiated settlements while others continue until one side’s total defeat? How can states effectively communicate their intentions in spite of pervasive incentives to dissemble and prevaricate? When can alliances deter one’s enemies, and when might they draw states into undesirable conflicts? Finally, how do the most powerful states in the system -- the great powers -- manage the ever-shifting landscape of power between them? We begin the course in Part I by introducing two critical components of the modern theory of war & uncertainty and commitment problems that shed light on both why wars start and how they end. Part II begins with the Sino-Japanese War of 1894-1895, which began a marked shift in power away from China and towards Japan, and ends with the collapse of the Japanese Empire at the end of the Second World War. Next, Part III explores the politics of the Cold War, which saw the consolidation of Communist China and the retreat of the Nationalist government to Taiwan at the end of the Chinese civil war and the United States? entry into the region as the status quo superpower during the Korean War. Finally, Part IV takes up questions of China’s emergence as an economic power, continuing frontier rivalries with Taiwan, Russia, and smaller neighbors, and the possibility of its emergence as a global power in the coming decades.

INR 5769 Religion and International Politics 3 SCH
This course analyzes how religious beliefs and institutions shape politics that cross borders. It draws upon an array of writings to examine major global phenomena like the religious roots of international order; religious challenges both to modern states and to recent globalization; and activism amongst global religious movements. In turn, the course concentrates on two major issues for scholars, policy- makers and citizens alike: 1) international religious extremism and violence and 2) religious influences on – and targets of – U.S. foreign policy. Examples of topics covered along the way include Evangelical activism and ideologies, religious terrorism and the Israeli-Palestinian conflict.

INR 5XXX International Political Economy 3 SCH
This is a course on International Political Economy, with a focus on globalization processes. Its main goal is to provide students with a theoretical and critical understanding on the ways international financial and trade markets interact with governments and how this interaction has changed in the post-war period. The course examines the following questions: Who wins and who loses from globalization of trade and finance? Who sets the rules under which the game of international capitalism is played? How powerful are international organizations like the WTO, the IMF, and the EU vis-à-vis nation-states? What are the causes and effects of financial crises? These issues are explored with reference to economic and political theories, history and contemporary events.

INR 5XXX International Relations of East Asia 3 SCH
This course uses East Asian international history since the late 19th Century to explore some of the most enduring questions about international politics. What are the causes of war? How, once begun, do wars end? Why do some wars end in negotiated settlements while others continue until one side’s total defeat? How can states effectively communicate their intentions in spite of pervasive incentives to disassemble and prevaricate? When can alliances deter one’s enemies, and when might they draw states into undesirable conflicts? Finally, how do the most powerful states in the system -- the great powers -- manage the ever-shifting landscape of power between them? We begin the course in Part I by introducing two critical components of the modern theory of war—uncertainty and commitment problems—that shed light on both why wars start and how they end. Part II begins with the Sino-Japanese War of 1894-1895, which began a marked shift in power away from China and towards Japan, and ends with the collapse of the Japanese Empire at the end of the Second World War. Next, Part III explores the politics of the Cold War, which saw the consolidation of Communist China and the retreat of the Nationalist government to Taiwan at the end of the Chinese civil war and the United States’ entry into the region as the status quo superpower during the Korean War. Finally, Part IV takes up questions of China’s emergence as an economic power, continuing frontier rivalries with Taiwan, Russia, and smaller neighbors, and the possibility of its emergence as a global power in the coming decades.

INR 5XXX Terrorism and Counter-Terrorism 3 SCH
This seminar provides an advanced, in-depth analysis of international terrorist threats & the means to counter them. The seminar will focus on the most significant terrorist actors, incidents, & attacks around the world. State sponsorship of terrorism will also be included in the seminar. From a strategic perspective, the course will examine terrorist motivations & intentions as well as specific tactics, techniques, and procedures.

POS 6905 Directed Study 3 SCH
Individual study by students under the direction of a faculty member.

F. For degree programs in the science and technology disciplines, discuss how industry-driven competencies were identified and incorporated into the curriculum and indicate whether any industry advisory council exists to provide input for curriculum development and student assessment.

This program is not in a science and technology discipline.

G. For all programs, list the specialized accreditation agencies and learned societies that would be concerned with the proposed program. Will the university seek accreditation for the program if it is available? If not, why? Provide a brief timeline for seeking accreditation, if appropriate.

The department is not aware of specialized accreditation agencies or learned societies that would be applicable to the proposed degree program.

H. For doctoral programs, list the accreditation agencies and learned societies that would be concerned with corresponding bachelor’s or master’s programs associated with the proposed program. Are the programs accredited? If not, why?

Not applicable; this is a master’s level degree program.

I. Briefly describe the anticipated delivery system for the proposed program (e.g., traditional delivery on main campus; traditional delivery at branch campuses or centers; or nontraditional delivery such as distance or distributed learning, self-paced instruction, or external degree programs). If the proposed delivery system will require specialized services or greater than normal financial support, include projected costs in Table 2 in Appendix A. Provide a narrative describing the feasibility of delivering the proposed program through collaboration with other universities, both public and private. Cite specific queries made of other institutions with respect to shared courses, distance/distributed learning technologies, and joint-use facilities for research or internships.

The M.A. in International Affairs degree program will be available to both face-to-face and synchronous online students. Courses will be offered on the UWF campus with synchronous distance learning students able to join in real time. UWF’s Reubin O’D. Askew Department of Government has been delivering the current M.A. program in Political Science via a synchronous distance learning format since 2014 and the faculty are very comfortable and proficient in using the technology.

For synchronous delivery, a group of students are in a face-to-face classroom while the distance learning students participate at the same time in the same course over the Internet. WebEx, the synchronous distance learning platform, allows students to listen to live lectures, show examples from instructors, ask questions in real time, and chat with classmates. Online students log-on to the Internet at designated class times. Two-way audio and video enables live interaction between the instructor and the online students.

IX. Faculty Participation

A. Use Table 4 in Appendix A to identify existing and anticipated full-time (not visiting or adjunct) faculty who will participate in the proposed program through Year 5. Include (a) faculty code associated with the source of funding for the position; (b) name; (c) highest degree held; (d) academic discipline or specialization; (e) contract status (tenure, tenure-earning, or multi-year annual [MYA]); (f) contract length in months; and (g) percent of annual effort that will be directed toward the proposed program (instruction, advising, supervising internships and practica, and supervising thesis or dissertation hours).

Adam Cayton, Ph.D.
Brian Crisher, Ph.D.
Alfred Cuzan, Ph.D.
David Ramsey, Ph.D.
Jacob Shively, Ph.D.
Michelle Williams, Ph.D.

B. Use Table 2 in Appendix A to display the costs and associated funding resources for existing and anticipated full-time faculty (as identified in Table 4 in Appendix A). Costs for visiting and adjunct faculty should be included in the category of Other Personnel Services (OPS). Provide a narrative summarizing projected costs and funding sources.

As the proposed M.A. in International Affairs degree program is replacing in purpose and resource use an existing Security and Diplomacy Track within the M.A. in Political Science degree program, the funds currently being utilized for the track will be used for the stand-alone degree program. The total reallocated base for the program is $118,593. The main costs for the program are faculty salaries and benefits ($91,223 Year 1, $151,061 Year 5). Adjunct expenses are $2,750 for one course the program offered each summer in response to student needs.

Program expenses are based on current and projected funding levels for the current Security and Diplomacy Track of the M.A. in Political Science degree program all from E&G funds. (Appendix A Table 2).

C. Provide in the appendices the abbreviated curriculum vitae (CV) for each existing faculty member (do not include information for visiting or adjunct faculty).

Faculty curriculum vitae are available in Appendix H for the following program faculty who will be supporting the proposed M.A. in International Affairs degree program:

Adam Cayton, Ph.D.
Brian Crisher, Ph.D.
Alfred Cuzan, Ph.D.
David Ramsey, Ph.D.
Jacob Shively, Ph.D.
Michelle Williams, Ph.D.

D. Provide evidence that the academic unit(s) associated with this new degree have been productive in teaching, research, and service. Such evidence may include trends over time for average course load, FTE productivity, student HC in major or service courses, degrees granted, external funding attracted, as well as qualitative indicators of excellence.

Faculty of the Reubin O’D. Askew Department of Government are productive in teaching, research, and service to the university, the community, and the discipline. The following tables show departmental productivity semester credit hours taught and FTE productivity, and degrees awarded.

X. Non-Faculty Resources

A. Describe library resources currently available to implement and/or sustain the proposed program through Year 5. Provide the total number of volumes and serials available in this discipline and related fields. List major journals that are available to the university’s students. Include a signed statement from the Library Director that this subsection and subsection B have been reviewed and approved.

UWF currently offers B.A. and M.A programs in political science with a Security and Diplomacy Track. In support of the Master of Arts in International Affairs degree program, the UWF Libraries are equipped to provide similar resources and services for this proposed program, including resources that support the interdisciplinary nature of international relations.

The libraries shelve more than 770,000 print volumes and house an extensive microforms collection. Electronic resources include more than 160,000 e-books and access to approximately 80,000 journals and other serial titles through the EBSCO discovery system. An analysis of holdings in relevant Library of Congress classifications indicates that UWF has approximately 3,100 books related specifically to international law and relations, and over 14,000 books in political science fields. The library also provides access to over 2,000 peer-reviewed e-journals and over 2,100 e-books in politics, government, and international relations.

Specialized indexing, abstracting, and full-text databases relevant to international relations include Political Science Complete, Political Science Database, CQ Researcher, and PAIS International. More general and multidisciplinary databases supporting international relations include JSTOR, Academic Search Complete, Research Library Complete, and Social Science Database. Full-text dissertations and theses are available through ProQuest Dissertations and Theses. Using their Argonet accounts, students and faculty may access electronic resources any time from any place.
Selected library resources currently available to implement the proposed M.A. in International Affairs degree program include:

- Political Science Complete

B. Describe additional library resources that are needed to implement and/or sustain the program through Year 5. Include projected costs of additional library resources in Table 2 in Appendix A. Please include the signature of the Library Director in Appendix B.

The Dean of UWF Libraries has determined that library services and resources currently available are adequate to implement the Master of Arts in International Affairs degree program and sustain the program through Year 5. Furthermore, UWF Libraries’ holdings are competitive when compared to the resources available at other institutions with similar programs.

C. Describe classroom, teaching laboratory, research laboratory, office, and other types of space that are necessary and currently available to implement the proposed program through Year 5.

The M.A. in International Affairs degree program will replace the existing M.A. in Political Science concentration track in Security and Diplomacy. It will use the same classroom, office, and other spaces. All M.A.-level synchronous online courses in the department are taught in classroom 174 in building 79.

Classroom 174 in Building 79

There are 4 rectangular tables typically arranged to form a single large conference table that all classroom students and the professor can sit around. The synchronous online student camera is at one end of the conference table allowing the distance learning students to see the full view of participants around the table. The tables can be moved into pods for group work where each group has a smartboard on the wall for computer display. There are 3 smart boards with a main presentation computer and projection screen in the room.

Building 50 on the main Pensacola campus currently provides office space for faculty, and staff.
- Faculty offices
  - All full-time faculty have private offices nearby for easy access to students and the student classroom.

Other Workspaces
- Technology Support
  - Classroom and online technology support are provided through the University’s Information Technology Services department.

- Online Help
  - Distance learning management system (eLearning) is maintained by the UWF university technology support team to include the helpdesk for immediate student tech needs. There is a special hotline for assistance with the current e-Learning platform: Canvas.

D. Describe additional classroom, teaching laboratory, research laboratory, office, and other space needed to implement and/or maintain the proposed program through Year 5. Include any projected Instruction and Research (I&R) costs of additional space in Table 2 in Appendix A. Do not include costs for new construction because that information should be provided in response to X (E) below.
The proposed degree program will not require any additional classroom, teaching laboratory, research laboratory, office, or other space to implement the program nor to sustain it through Year 5.

E. If a new capital expenditure for instructional or research space is required, indicate where this item appears on the university's fixed capital outlay priority list. Table 2 in Appendix A includes only Instruction and Research (I&R) costs. If non-I&R costs, such as indirect costs affecting libraries and student services, are expected to increase as a result of the program, describe and estimate those expenses in narrative form below. It is expected that high enrollment programs in particular would necessitate increased costs in non-I&R activities.

The department does not anticipate any new capital expenditures for instructional or research space.

F. Describe specialized equipment that is currently available to implement the proposed program through Year 5. Focus primarily on instructional and research requirements.

The proposed degree program will not require any additional specialized equipment to implement the program nor to sustain it through Year 5.

G. Describe additional specialized equipment that will be needed to implement and/or sustain the proposed program through Year 5. Include projected costs of additional equipment in Table 2 in Appendix A.

The department does not anticipate the need for any specialized equipment to implement the program nor to sustain it through Year 5.

H. Describe any additional special categories of resources needed to implement the program through Year 5 (access to proprietary research facilities, specialized services, extended travel, etc.). Include projected costs of special resources in Table 2 in Appendix A.

The department does not need any special categories of resources to implement the program nor to sustain it through Year 5.

I. Describe fellowships, scholarships, and graduate assistantships to be allocated to the proposed program through Year 5. Include the projected costs in Table 2 in Appendix A.

The department will allocate three graduate assistantships to the proposed M.A. program in International Affairs through Year 5.

J. Describe currently available sites for internship and practicum experiences, if appropriate to the program. Describe plans to seek additional sites in Years 1 through 5.
The department has the ability to offer 3 SCH internships to graduate students and these can take the place of 1 Elective course (3 SCH) in the degree plan. Credit for an internship would be offered through Directed Study credit (POS 6905) with a faculty member in communication with the internship site supervisor. The department has had little demand for graduate level internship courses in the current M.A. in Political Science, in part because many of the graduate students are currently working and/or have work experience when they enter the program.

However, if the department sees an increase in demand for graduate internships, the department faculty would move to create a permanent internship course at the graduate level. The department currently has relationships with internship providers for undergraduate programs that could also provide internship experiences appropriate for graduate students.

As discussed, there are no current plans to seek additional internship sites, as existing sites have been historically underutilized among our M.A. students. Many of the current Master’s students already have employment during their time in our M.A. program or that they will return to upon program completion.

Current internship site locations include the Gulf Coast Citizen Diplomacy Council (affiliated with U.S. State Department visits to the area), various defense contractors, and offices of local public officials.

Academic Learning Plan and Student Learning Outcomes
International Affairs, M.A.

Mission Statement
The mission of the Department of Government is to educate students in the areas of government, politics, and international affairs, and by this means to foster more knowledgeable, informed, and active citizenship, as well as more enlightened future political leadership, in the communities to which they belong.

Student Learning Outcomes
UWF International Affairs, M.A. graduates should be able to do the following:

Content
• Compare the organization and exercise of political power both between and within different regimes and political cultures

Critical Thinking
• Identify relevant theories from the scholarly literature that are helpful for understanding the selected question, problem, or puzzle

Communication
• Write coherent, intelligible, systematic, and potentially persuasive papers
• Accurately present findings orally with appropriate visual tools

Integrity/Values
• Use legitimate scholarship and appropriate citation in keeping with standards of academic integrity

Assessment of Student Learning Outcomes
We assess the Academic Learning Plan SLOs through a Comprehensive Exam process that is the final requirement ahead of graduation. The comprehensive exam involves both an oral and written component. A committee of departmental faculty members evaluate both the written and oral answers. Students receive either a pass, conditional pass, or fail on the written exam. Students receive an honors pass, a pass or a fail on the oral exam.
Job Prospects for International Affairs, M.A. Graduates

Students with an MA in International Affairs have strong skills in critical thinking, writing and analysis that lend themselves well to careers in policy analysis, politics and governmental administration, governmental civil service or contracting, intelligence service –either civilian or military, military officer development, media careers, careers in education at all levels, and business analysis.

University of West Florida Graduate Admissions and Graduation Requirements
APPENDIX D
ADMISSION AND GRADUATION REQUIREMENTS

http://catalog.uwf.edu/graduate/admissions/generalinformation/

The Graduate School administers the application, admission, and readmission process for all degree-seeking and non-degree seeking graduate students. It also assists prospective graduate students in obtaining information about UWF.

General Policies
The University of West Florida encourages applications for admission from qualified students regardless of gender, culture, religion, ethnic background, age, marital status, or disability. Students with documented visual impairments, hearing impairments, motor impairments, or specific learning disabilities may petition for substitution of admission requirements provided such substitution does not significantly alter the nature of the program for which admission is being sought. For more information about the University's admission requirement substitution policy contact the Graduate School.

Admission of students to the University of West Florida is within the jurisdiction of the University, but subject to the minimum standards adopted by the UWF Board of Trustees and the Florida Board of Governors.

Conditions of Admission
The Graduate School will notify the applicants of the admission decision. Admission to the University is often contingent upon the subsequent receipt of satisfactory and official college or university transcripts and verification of baccalaureate degrees. Failure to submit such documents may result in the cancellation of admission. Refer to Provisional Admission for more information.

Ownership of Submitted Documents
All credentials and documents submitted become the property of the University of West Florida. The originals or copies of the originals will not be returned to the applicant or forwarded to another institution, agency, or person.

Fraudulent Records
If it is found that an applicant has made a false or fraudulent statement or a deliberate omission on the application for admission, the residency statement, or any other accompanying documents or statements, the applicant may be denied admission. If the student is already enrolled when the fraud is discovered, the case will be adjudicated using the procedures specified for violations of the UWF Student Conduct System as contained in the Student Handbook.

Applicant Conduct
The University shall evaluate an applicant's previous conduct to determine whether offering the applicant admission is in the best interest of the University. Applicants with a record of previous misconduct at an educational institution or criminal conduct will be evaluated during the admission process in accordance with UWF/REG 3.003.
Request for Admission for a Later Semester
Applicants are admitted to the University only for the semester for which they apply. Students who do not enroll in the semester for which they have been admitted and want consideration for a different semester must reapply for admission and pay another application processing fee. Applicants will be considered for admission under the policies in effect at that time. Admission is not automatic. If an applicant has attended, or is currently attending, another collegiate institution since the submission of the previous application, the applicant must indicate the institution on the new application and provide an official transcript of all work attempted.

Admission Documents Required
Applicants for graduate admission must provide the Graduate School with the following documents:

Application for Admission
Applicants must apply for graduate level admission online. The application for admission and a non-refundable, non-deferrable $30 processing, fee payable to the University of West Florida, should be submitted six to nine months prior to the semester for which admission is requested. It is the policy of the University not to defer or waive the application for admission and the application processing fee. The application processing fee must be in U.S. currency and drawn from a U.S. bank. There is an option to pay via credit card when the web application is submitted.

College Transcripts
Applicants must submit one official transcript from each college and university attended to the Graduate School. Applicants who received their undergraduate degree from UWF do not need to provide UWF transcripts. Transcripts are considered official when they are sent from a college or university directly to the Graduate School and bear an official seal and signature. Transcripts bearing the statement "Issued to Student," faxed transcripts, or transcripts submitted by the applicant are not considered official. Original documents, or signed officially certified photocopies of original documents, may be submitted by the applicant only when institutions outside the U.S. will not send academic records to other institutions. The verifying signature should preferably be that of an officer of the institution attended. All academic records that are not in English must be accompanied by certified English translations.

Test Scores
Official test results from a nationally standardized graduate admission test are required for all applicants unless otherwise specified by the graduate program to which the applicant is applying. Applicants should contact the graduate department to which they applied to inquire as to which test is acceptable for that program or if it may be waived. The University of West Florida accepts the Graduate Record Examination (GRE), the Miller Analogies Test (MAT), and the Graduate Management Admissions Test (GMAT). Test scores are considered official only when they are sent directly to the Graduate School from the testing agency. Examinee copies are not considered official. Test scores must be no more than five years old.

Applicants should contact the graduate department to which they applied to inquire as to specific departmental admission test deadlines. However, the majority of departments recommend that applicants complete the appropriate graduate admission test well in advance of their anticipated semester of admission (no later than April for fall semester applications, no later than August for spring semester applications, and no later than January for summer semester applications). It is recommended that applicants to a doctoral program should complete the graduate admission test one year prior to their anticipated semester of admission. The GRE, GMAT, and MAT are offered several times a year at numerous testing centers in the U.S. and abroad. Advanced registration is required. Registration forms, as well as detailed information on the availability and character of the examinations may be obtained from the UWF Testing Center.

Departmental Requirements
Some departments have additional admission requirements such as auditions, portfolios, goal statements, letters of recommendation, departmental applications, writing samples, personal interviews, and diagnostic testing. Applicants should contact the department directly regarding any departmental admission requirements.

http://catalog.uwf.edu/graduate/academicpolicies/graduation/

Application for Graduation
Applications for Graduation are submitted for the term in which the student is completing their degree requirements. All applications must be submitted during the application period. Specific dates are noted in the Academic Calendar. Students who miss the deadline should contact their academic department to determine eligibility and to request a late submission. Students submitting a late application risk not being included in the commencement program. Retroactive graduation to a prior semester will not be approved.

Certificate Programs
Students applying for a certificate should also follow the steps for Applying for Graduation. Awarded certificates will be listed on the student's academic transcript.

Master's and Specialist Degrees

Dear Michelle,

It was good speaking with you earlier today. I write just to just to wish you well with your proposed new M.A. in International Affairs at UWF.

While we offer our own M.A. in International Studies through my Department here at FIU, I do not believe that the graduate student constituencies would be competing; you made it clear to me that your main student consistency in Pensacola comes from the local military facilities. Moreover, there are already other competing M.A. programs in International Affairs in the State of Florida, and some closer to FIU.

My only caveat is that I do NOT speak for the Green School of International and Public Affairs at FIU. The School in which my Department is housed offers its own, separate program, the M.A. in Global Affairs. One of the tracks in that program is called "Globalization and Security," so you might want to confer with Associate Dean Shlomi Dinar (dinars@fiu.edu) as you finalize your proposal.

All good wishes,

John

Dr. Williams:

I enjoyed our phone conversation and appreciate the opportunity to learn more about the proposed Master’s in Intl Affairs degree at UWF. Based upon what I heard about the proposed degree at UWF, which will have an emphasis on Security Studies, I see no conflict between your degree proposal and the our existing interdisciplinary International Affair master’s degree here at FSU. The intellectual foundations, coursework, and approach to these two degrees are significantly different, so there is very little risk of these programs cannibalizing each other.

Thanks for the great conversation and the best of luck with your degree proposal.

Dear Professor Williams,

I enjoyed our conversation last week about your proposed master’s program. Given that your program will not be an interdisciplinary program in the same sense as ours, it seems that there will be little overlap in the content between the two. You have a ready made market in the military bases that would be unlikely to be able to attend graduate school in Tallahassee. Best of luck to you as you plan and grow this program.

Hi Michelle

It was a pleasure to speak with you this morning.

The Department of Political Science at UF fully supports UWF’s effort to offer a standalone MA program in International Affairs. I only see it complementing our graduate training at UF.

Hello Dr. Williams,

It was a pleasure speaking with you this morning. I am writing to express support for your proposed MA program in International Affairs. There are similarities to our program at UNF in terms of content specialization which I expected; however, your program differs in that it is not interdisciplinary but will reside within the department of political science, it focuses more on an online synchronous presence rather than face to face and is more focused on the applied side of the discipline. Furthermore, I believe UWF is ideally situated for a partnership with the military installations in its vicinity, which would provide access to practitioners to enhance the applied aspect of the program.

Please let me know if I can be of further assistance.

Florida West Economic Development Alliance

Okaloosa County Economic Development Council

Santa Rosa Economic Development
Dear Sir/Ma’am:

FloridaWest Economic Development Alliance is pleased to provide this letter to confirm our support of the University of West Florida’s effort to establish a new graduate degree program in international affairs.

FloridaWest, an alliance of more than 100 public and private entities, is the economic development organization located in Pensacola, Florida, wholly dedicated to advancing the economic health and vitality of our region. The proposed master’s degree program represents an opportunity critical to supporting FloridaWest’s efforts to bridge the gap between the needs of today’s businesses and the welfare of our future employees.

This master’s degree program would serve Northwest Florida, an area rich with national security and military professionals. Our area’s large concentration of military professionals and government contractors gives UWF a unique opportunity to recruit highly qualified adjunct instructors. Not only are these individuals able to train students in applied skills and specialized knowledge, they are also able to offer guidance in navigating the job market and develop career readiness for future jobs.

Thank you, and please contact me if I can be of further assistance.

Dear Donovan,

Santa Rosa County Economic Development fully supports the proposal by the University of West Florida to offer a Master of Arts in International Affairs.

Our community has a need for such graduates. We have an estimated 34,000 military retirees with an additional 2,400 new retirees every year. This degree program will be a benefit to these individuals and they in turn will supply the specialized knowledge to better train students in applied skills for the current job market and for future jobs as well.

In addition, as a graduate of the University of West Florida, I understand the need for diversity of degrees offered. We are currently working with an International manufacturer and value the recruitment of companies abroad. The Santa Rosa Economic Development Office would welcome these graduates to our candidate pool.

3 This journal billed itself as “refereed” but the refereeing was done in-house, not by external reviewers. It was discontinued in 2017. Several of the papers I published there are available at ssrn.com.

4 For many years, Public Choice was edited by Gordon Tullock. He was a rigorous, one might say, fierce and demanding reviewer, but at least in the case of my own submissions, he did it all the reviewing himself. He rejected one of my articles and accepted two.
